About the Conference ‘WAVES 2022’

Vedas are among the oldest existing records of human thoughts, and Vedic traditions have continued without interruption for many millennia, becoming the driving force of Hindu culture and philosophy. Vedic culture which once thrived on a vast land ranging from present day Indonesia to present day Iran and Iraq, up until the time of Islamic conquest. Vedic traditions are not confined to South Asian subcontinent anymore but have spread virtually to all parts of the globe, through persons of Hindu origin and through scholars and admirers of these traditions. The driving force behind the spread of Vedic culture, literature and philosophy has been the translation of Vedic and Purānic literature from Sanskrit to major world languages by learned scholars and spread of people of Hindu origin to different parts of world.

Vedic literature is the oldest preserved literature of the world and has inspired intellectuals around the world. While the inspiration provided by Vedic insights to world-famous scientists and poets is well known, much of the Vedic foundations and their contribution in modern-day theory and applications to health, medicine, psychology, business, and education are least understood and unacknowledged. This conference focuses on bringing such contributions to light.

The WAVES conference will consist of a rich variety of sessions, including an Inaugural session, Panel discussions, Plenaries, Keynotes, Poster-presentations, and Valedictory sessions. We expect strong participation of global scholars, particularly from the USA and India, and also from Europe, Asia, South America, North America, and Caribbean. School and University students engaged in Vedas related education and research are also expected to attend the conference.
